Venice going for incinerator

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

VENICE — The City Council plans to go on record with the Madison County Board as being in favor of a trash-to-energy incinerator, in the hope that such a plant would be built in Venice.

County Board Member Don Garrett of Madison spoke at the council meeting Tuesday night, urging the council to take the action.

"There are already (board members) who are thumbs down on trash-to-energy," Garrett warned. "If you're interested in this type of program you ought to go on record with a letter or something."

Garrett has had several meetings with a Godfrey man who is a licensed representative of Black & Veatch, a Kansas City-based company that operates more than a dozen trash-to-energy incinerators and has supplied engineering services for many more.

Tracy Calame, the representative, confirmed he had met with Garrett. He said Black & Veatch might be willing to build — at its own cost — an incinerator capable of handling 500 tons of trash per day. The plant would cost an estimated $50-60 million to build and would employ 30 to 40 workers, he said.

Garrett said the city could get guarantees that some of the jobs would be filled by Venice residents and that the city could collect "tipping fees," charges for dumping trash.

Garrett and Calame said varied arrangements were available between the city and the company. The city could pay for the plant, and the company could build and operate it. Or the company could build the plant for the city, and the city could operate it. Or the company could pay for the plant, build it and operate it.

The profit would come from two sources: fees for municipalities to dump trash there and electricity generated from the trash to sell to power companies.

"Their main concern is that there be enough trash to make a profit," Garrett said.

If the city or the county opted to build its own incinerator(s), the cost would be an important consideration. Garrett used a figure of $14 million.

Calame said the cost of a 500-ton-per-day plant would be more like $50-60 million.

But the figure bandied about most often has been the $206 million estimated by the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council in a report on incineration.

County Board Member Bob Stille of Edwardsville, a member of the board's Environmental Committee, said that figure is "way inflated." He said he had visited a new plant in Florida, capable of burning 1,000 tons of trash a day, that cost $80 million to build.

Madison County generates about 800,000 tons of trash a year, with another 1.1 million tons brought in from Missouri; a 500-ton-per-day incinerator would just about handle that amount, Stille said.

"The initial county plan, two years in preparation, called for a central incinerator to handle trash from three counties — Madison, St. Louis and St. Charles," he said. (See TRASH, Page 10A)

National Intergroup to be restructured; Love will step down

PITTSBURG — Howard M. "Pete" Love, chairman and chief executive officer of National Intergroup Inc., said Tuesday he will retire from those positions. NII is the parent firm of National Steel Corp., owner of Granite City Steel.

The board of directors of NII at a meeting Tuesday authorized the management to aggressively pursue the final steps of the firm's restructuring program.

As part of the restructuring, Love will retire and the headquarters will be moved to Dallas. In addition, the NII name will be changed.

NII is one of the two parent companies of National Steel Corp., of which Granite City Steel is a division. Negotiations are under way to provide Nippon Kogan with a 70-30 majority rather than 50-50 percent joint ownership.

Principal elements of the NII revamping, which are to be completed not later than the fiscal year ending March 31, 1991, include:

- Sale of Ben Franklin Stores Inc., a chain of franchised, general merchandise stores.

- Completion of a pending tender offer for Permian Partners L.P. preference units and the subsequent sale, spin-off or formation of a joint venture with another company, of Permian Partners L.P. and its general partner, The Permian Corp.
- Payment of a special dividend or buy-back of stock after completion of asset dispositions, in order to achieve capitalization ratios appropriate for the ongoing pharmaceutical distribution business, while ensuring a strong financial platform for FoxMeyer's continued expansion.

- Closing of the corporate headquarters in Pittsburgh and transfer of a limited number of corporate functions to FoxMeyer's headquarters in Dallas.

- Submitting to stockholders at the forthcoming annual meeting a proposal to adopt FoxMeyer Corp. as the company's new name. (See LOVE, Page 10A)

Rape charge filed

By Andy Siering

GRANITE CITY — The State's Attorney's Office issued a warrant Wednesday afternoon for a Granite City man arrested Friday afternoon for allegedly raping a 15-year-old Granite City girl May 31.

Craig S. York, 26, of the 2700 block of Michigan Avenue, was arrested at 2:15 p.m. Friday and later freed on bond, pending warrant applications.

York was charged in the warrant with aggravated criminal sexual abuse. He was arrested again yesterday afternoon and released on $40,000 bond.

Officers alleged York entered through an unlocked rear door of a residence in the Wilson Park area while the girl was home alone and asked her to have sex with him.

The girl told police that York, whom she has known for several years, had called her earlier in May. (See RAPE, Page 10A)

City hiring may change

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Future city employees will be hired through a personnel commission, if the City Council approves the proposal of an ad hoc committee on personnel.

Second Ward Alderman Virgil Kambarian, chairman of the committee, said the proposal was "hashed out" at a committee meeting May 31 and he plans to present it to the aldermen June 18. The plan includes establishing a personnel commission and adoption of a new hiring policy.

Under current policy, the mayor is responsible for hiring all city employees except fire fighters and police officers, who are hired by the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. Fire fighters and police officers would continue to be hired by the board under the new plan.

All other positions, under the plan, would be filled by the mayor from a list prepared by the personnel commission of the top three applicants for the position.

"This is not to end patronage," Kambarian said. "Patronage is not necessarily a dirty word; it's a fact of city government. But this will make sure that the persons have to be qualified before they are hired for a job."

Kambarian said changing the process doesn't reflect problems with any of the city's present employees.

"What we wanted to establish is a system that will outlive all of us," Kambarian said. "We want a system based on rules rather than a system based on people."

Mayor Von Dee Cruse, who appointed the committee, said the proposal should help the city hire people in a more professional manner.

"We're getting too big and every job is too important to leave it all up to the mayor," Cruse said. "It's a fact that not all people are qualified to do all jobs."

"... This way the mayor still has the authority (to hire people), but it will be a matter of choosing people who have already shown (the commission) they are qualified."

Costello town meeting clears air

By Maxine Duniphan
Correspondent

MITCHELL — The federal Clean Air Act was Rep. Jerry Costello's leading topic at a town meeting here Monday.

Costello, U.S. congressman from the 21st Illinois District, addressed a gathering of officials and citizens at the Chouteau Township Social Center, 906 North Thorngate Drive.

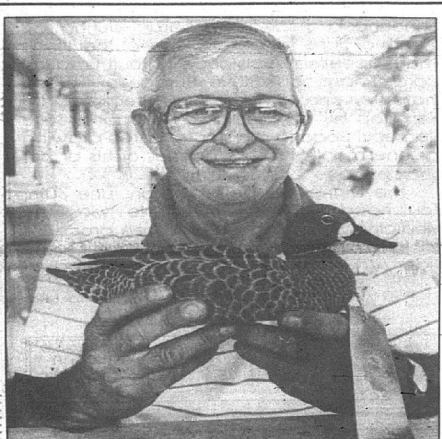

Costello said he voted against the Clean Air

Act — overwhelmingly approved in the House — because, he said, it unfairly burdens Illinois with what he called a national problem.

"I am all for clean air, but clean air is not just an Illinois problem," Costello said. "It is a national problem and the expensive problem of cleaning up the air should not be placed on any one state."

Costello said the guidelines in the act would virtually shut down Illinois coal mines because of the coal's high sulfur content.

Hunt ducking Woodcarver a winner

By Sam Hananel
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The painstaking craftsmanship that Don Hunt puts into his wood carvings paid off last month when he won an honorable mention at the annual Ward World Wildlife Carving Competition in Ocean City, Md.

Billed as the largest competition of its kind in the world, the event attracted more than 500 carvers from across the country. Over 400 received awards.

While Hunt has had an interest in wood carving for the past 30 years, he said he only began to enter competitions three years ago.

Hunt described wildfowl carving as an art form that requires as much skill and talent as painting or sculpting. He said it took more than three months to create the Blue Wing Teal Hen that won most recently. "Time to me is not important," he said. "I just want to get it done the best I can."

Hunt combines his natural carving abilities with painting skills, he learned by taking courses at Southern Illinois University.

Modeling his carvings after photos in reference books and birds kept at the St. Louis Zoo, Hunt has carved 15 birds over the past five years. All the tools necessary to make the wood carvings are located at Hunt's home.

Aside from entering his work in contests, Hunt tries to sell his birds, which are priced at about $500 each. People collect wood carvings of birds just as professional and amateur collectors buy paintings, Hunt said.

Although his award was in the novice category, Hunt has even higher aspirations. "I'm a novice now but I hope to step up to the more competitive brackets," he said.

His next step is a carving contest in Davenport, Iowa. He attends most of the contests in which he enters carvings, fitting the trips and his hobby into his spare time. Employed as a carpenter, he devotes weekends and evenings to carving.

For now, Hunt has found his niche in carving duck decoys. "I'm pretty satisfied with this," he said.

Illinois Power granted 7.7% electric rate increase

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois Power customers will be paying about $4 more per month because of a 7.7 percent electric rate increase approved Wednesday by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The increase, the fourth in the past four years, was approved by a 6-1 vote, Commission member Calvin Manshof of Chicago voted against it.

Martin Cohen, associate director of the Citizens' Utility Board, a statewide consumer group, called the rate increase "a bad decision."

"It doesn't need and certainly does not deserve a rate increase to pay for the blunder of Clinton," he said, referring to the utility's nuclear power plant in Clinton.

The increase is effective immediately and will raise the average electric bill by $3.66 per month, to $28.98 from $25.32. That will produce an added $75 million annually for IP.

"That is well below the company's one-time request of $285 million," ICC spokeswoman Cathy Monroe said.

That 36.2 percent rate increase request, filed in July 1989, was later amended to a 25 percent, $215 million rate hike request. ICC Chairman Terry Barnish said the decision was "neither easily arrived at nor preordained" and was fair to both customers and the utility.

"The commission struck a balance between the interests of the company, its shareholders and the ratepayers by granting less than one-third of the company's

City OKs subdivision

By Sam Hananel
Staff writer

The City Council on Tuesday approved plans by A.S.F. Development Co. to develop Mitchell Lake Subdivision No. 2 located at Chain of Rocks Road and Old Alton Road.

The decision reversed a vote against the development last month by the Plan Commission.

John Hale of the engineering firm of Sheppard, Morgan, and Schwaab Inc. said the council's approval was needed before the county could approve development of the property.

Although the subdivision is not within Granite City, the council retains jurisdiction over unincorporated areas within one mile of the city limits.

Hale said there is no stormwater flooding problem in the proposed residential area, despite earlier unfounded speculation that there might be.

In other business, Brett Hanke, Granite City director of public works, reported on a recycling and composting conference attended May 14-16 in Minneapolis by himself, Alderman Judy Whitaker and Terry Kalahan, superintendent of the city's sewage treatment plant.

Hanke said the information they learned on the operation of trash facilities, collection and management will be helpful in developing plans for the city.

Whitaker announced a sanitation meeting for 6 p.m. June 12 in the mayor's conference room at the City Hall.

Alderman Jim Miller filed a report on the International Council of Shopping Centers convention. He attended the meeting to help attract interested developers to Granite City's downtown redevelopment site.

There have been no replies so far to the 130 requests for proposals the city sent to developers in April.

Miller said nine developers and two retailers are interested in Granite City development and will soon be touring the city.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse announced his reappointment of Linda Irwin to the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

The council approved the following:

- A request by the national diabetes campaign to solicit donations on June 16.
- An amendment adding Purchasing to the standing committees of the council.
- An ordinance establishing a handicapped parking space at a residence at 2908 Dale Ave.

- Authorization for the mayor to execute an agreement between the city and Magna Trust Company to construct a pump station and force main stormwater sewer system along the northern boundary of the Partney Estates residential development at Pontoon road and Village Lane.

- Demolition of properties at 2219 Iowa St., 2312 Missouri Ave., 2318 Delmar Ave., 2116-18 Bryan Ave. and 2215 Edna St.

Simon backs 7-day wait on purchasing handguns

By Jason Moody
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — Vowing that 1990 will be the year Congress passes legislation requiring a seven-day wait before anyone can buy a handgun, Sen. Paul Simon joined a coalition of gun-control advocates Tuesday in launching a national campaign for passage of the so-called "Brady bill."

The bill is named after James Brady, the former White House press aide shot and severely injured during the assassination attempt on President Ronald Reagan in March 1981. Wounded in the head, Brady is still recuperating.

The bill has gained the support of various law enforcement officials and religious groups. It has 40 more House cosponsors than it had when Congress narrowly defeated it in September 1988.

"Up to this point we have not had the courage in Congress to act," Simon said at the press conference, referring to earlier votes on the one-week "cooling-off" period. "My hope is that the American people will speak out, not just the gun lobby."

Handgun Control Inc., a Washington, D.C., advocacy group chaired by Brady's wife, Sarah, kicked off its lobbying effort with a nationwide toll phone number for citizens to call and a 30-second television commercial aimed at deflating the message of the National Rifle Association.

"Today, Sarah and I are launching a national drive to awaken and mobilize the silent handgun-control majority of Americans," said Brady, a former Central Intelligence Institute whose injuries have left him permanently confined to a wheelchair. "We know from the polls that 91 percent of the American people support the Brady bill."

However, Simon, who chairs a Senate Judiciary subcommittee that must approve the legislation, has yet to muster support from enough lawmakers to send it to the Senate floor.

And although the chances are better that it will come to a vote in the full House this year, it still faces opposition from a large number of lawmakers.

Cognizant of the highly controversial nature of the issue, Mrs. Brady and other speakers at the press conference commended the courage of Sen. Simon, D-Makanda, Ill., and other lawmakers who support the legislation despite facing stiff election races this year.

Rep. Lynn Martin, who is running against Simon in Illinois' U.S. Senate race this year, will oppose the legislation if it comes up for a vote, a spokesman for the Loves Park Republican legislator said.

"The background checks which the Brady amendment required would have been prone to error and vulnerable to simple efforts of deception," Martin said when she voted against the legislation in 1988.

The NRA, which has staunchly opposed any restrictions on the sale of handguns, said the cooling-off period would do little to keep guns out of the hands of criminals or to prevent violent crime.

"Five out of six criminals do not use legal means to obtain their firearms," said Trey Hodgkins, spokesman for the NRA. "All it would do is force responsible gun owners to prove they are innocent, law-abiding citizens."

The NRA also argues that the seven days would do little to stop crimes of passion, since people rarely run to a gun dealership right before they are about to commit a violent act.

"If someone is in a fit of rage they can just as easily pick up a baseball bat or frying pan if they want to injure someone," said Hodgkins. "John Hinckley purchased the gun he used to shoot Reagan two months before the assassination attempt."

Illinois already has a three-day waiting period and 22 other states have similar laws on the books, but Simon and others say that criminals can just hop across the border to states that don't.

"In 1988, 2,470 convicted felons and people with a history of mental problems were denied the right to have handguns in Illinois," Simon said.

"Can anyone suggest that the state of Illinois would be better off if those guns were immediately available?"

S&L loan decisions assailed

By Jason Moody
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — Thrift institutions in Granite City are more than four times as likely to turn down the home-loan applications of blacks than whites, according to the latest statistics compiled by the federal Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS).

In a Madison County statistical area that runs from Alton to Granite City, 44 percent of the black applicants were turned down for home loans by savings and loan institutions while just 10 percent of whites were denied mortgages during the one-year period studied by the OTS.

Over the past decade, S&Ls have accounted for more than half the home loans in the nation.

The study also showed that white residents in the region's low-income neighborhoods were not as successful in obtaining the loans as residents in other areas. However, their 14 percent rejection rate still compared favorably to the levels experienced by black residents.

Black applicants in the Alton to Granite City census area fared worse than other blacks in the United States, while the white applicants there scored higher than their counterparts nationwide, the study showed. Nationally, blacks were turned down 30 percent of the time and whites 15 percent.

During the second half of the study, from January to July 1989, the report showed 59 percent of the blacks who applied for loans to buy a house were turned down by area thrifts.

Jerry Kluckman, director of compliance programs at the OTS, has argued that his agency is moving to ensure that thrifts around the country comply with federal law, which has declared discriminatory lending illegal whether intentional or not.

"We are committed to investigating alleged instances of discrimination and monitoring the activities of savings associations," Kluckman told a Senate banking subcommittee last month.

However, over the last three years his agency has not referred any cases of possible discrimination to the Justice Department, although during that time regulators cited 12 thrifts for substantive violations of the federal Fair Housing Act.

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., who chairs a Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs subcommittee, has held several hearings on mortgage discrimination, and has criticized the agency's handling of the problem.

"The financial regulatory agencies may see, hear and speak no evil, but I believe that the evidence demonstrates that discrimination in mortgage lending still exists in this country," he said at a recent hearing.

"I believe this evil hurts real people — working families who have earned their share of the American dream."

Starting in July, the OTS will make public performance evaluations for individual S&Ls, including minority lending rates.

Direct action can cut crime

There seems to be a widespread belief that little can be done about the volume and severity of law violations in and near Kirkpatrick Homes, the 451-apartment federal housing project along N. 10th St. We take the opposite view.

There is nothing intrinsically different than in other Granite City areas where families reside in dwellings. Each has an obligation to live peacefully, and a right to feel confident in his surroundings. Being relatively poor, qualifying for low-income units, doesn't mean people can't live within the same basic rules of civilization that apply to everyone.

The mayor not only presides over a board of aldermen, but appoints five commissioners who help govern Kirkpatrick (and Anchorage homes for senior citizens) through an executive director. The sites are part of the municipality, justifying the use of city staffs, including police officers.

We don't have any magic formula, but we question the too-easy rationale that troublemakers can't be curbed because they are visitors, not registered as tenants. Visitors in any block, not just housing projects, must abide by the law and can be ordered to leave if they are infringing on others' rights. They can be jailed when appropriate. Law and order can be maintained, by a can-do approach.

We reject the idea that it is too costly or too difficult to rid the Homes area of illegal tenants. If their conduct constitutes a threat to the public's safety, a crackdown can be launched, with repeated arrests of repeat offenders and escalating degrees of punishment.

Curfews for children can be fine-tuned and enforced, and there can be a strict interpretation of laws preventing adults from causing disturbances, bodily harm or property damage.

A neighborhood-watch group perhaps can be formed. A lot of people live in close proximity to other families at Kirkpatrick, but this can be an advantage as well as a disadvantage. Help is near, and it is hard for law violators to remain anonymous if they loiter at a particular point and harass residents.

Complaints need to be signed by victims, police need to play an alert and persistent role, and courts ought to "throw the book" at any persons who seek to intimidate people or participate in mob action.

With many of the residents worried about what the "long, hot summer" may bring, it is important to have the Granite City Housing Authority board and staff take a firm stand and that the city cooperate fully in assuring a wholesome atmosphere for all, not "survival of the fittest."

Frequent patrols, including massive police presence when justified, can and do work. Every part of town is entitled to a share of law enforcement, but it makes sense also for crime fighters to fight crime when and where it occurs.

Ideal new tourist attractions

Now that Universal Studios is ready to compete directly with Disney World, one wonders if the whole country is going to tip sharply toward the Southeast each June. But not everybody going on vacation can or should head for Orlando. There are other destinations, such as Metro East.

As we revealed May 30, exciting plans have been made for a proposed Mid-America Aquacenter, which may be built in Pontoon Beach.

"Education is its purpose. It's more than a public aquarium," the project director said in predicting that the many Aquacenter features will astound tourists, who could total a million a year.

At the Cahokia Mound Historic Site, on Collinsville Road, a new Indian Village center has been built. The interior is completed, it will include a large, mirrored area re-creating the prairie metropolis that flourished here centuries ago.

By 1993, as we reported June 3, a visitor center at the new Melvin Price Locks and Dam will showcase not only technology but wildlife, the natural environment and the Middle Mississippi River Valley's cultural heritage.

Florida, you're due for some competition.

Pete Love era ending here

By Bill Winter

Tall, bald, soft-spoken, Howard M. "Pete" Love is preparing to step down as chairman and chief executive of National Inter-group Inc., an announced Tuesday in Pittsburgh, his native city. The name of the corporation is being changed and it will be based in Dallas.

NII and Nippon Kokan of Japan each own half of National Steel Corp., whose three major divisions are in the Detroit area (Great Lakes Steel), in Granite City and in the Chicago area (Midwest Steel). NII and NKK announced a few weeks ago that they are negotiating for 30-70 percent ownership, with Nippon Kokan in the majority.

When Love retires it will be the end of an era at Granite City Steel.

He began his career in the steel industry at Great Lakes in 1956, becoming assistant to the division president there in 1965 and then moving to Midwest as president in 1966.

I first met him in 1971 when National acquired Granite City Steel, until then an independent company. Love continued as Midwest president when he was named GC Steel president in 1972. Granite City at the time was supplying hot-rolled coils to Midwest's finishing facilities for processing into flat-rolled and coated sheet steel products.

He joined the First Granite City National Bank board and a short time later moved from Pennsylvania to St. Louis County. He and his family developed a strong liking for this region, and soon his close friends included such business leaders as August A. Busch III and Charles Knight.

He was elected to active membership in Civic Progress, the influential group of St. Louis area chief executive officers. He also served on the St. Louis Area Boy Scout Council executive board and as a director of St. Louis University.

When Love was elected in 1975 as president and chief operating officer of the parent National Steel firm, with George Stinson remaining in Pittsburgh as chairman and chief executive, Love set up his corporate offices on the top floor of the Mercantile Bank tower in downtown St. Louis. He cited the central location here and noted that National Steel consisted of more than 50 plants in 22 states and Canada.

Steel capacity and productivity here and at other divisions expanded under his leadership. Steelmaking methods were modernized, and many anti-pollution projects were carried out, including purification of water drained into Horseshoe Lake.

He agreed to move his NSC offices Pittsburgh in late 1977, although even then he and his wife and five children decided to maintain their home here for a while. He was designated in 1979 as chief executive officer, adding the chairman title in 1981. By then he was serving on the boards of Trans World, Mellon Bank, Gould Inc. and Monsanto.

Many compared him to his late father, George Love, who headed M.A. Hanna, Consolidated Coal and Chrysler Corp. Unfortunately, the steel industry recession developed and profits became elusive at NSC and NII, the latter formed in 1983.

Diversification into other areas was pursued to make the company's financial results less cyclical.

But in recent months, despite improved NII profitability, there has been a spirited proxy fight by investors advocating its liquidation.

Section. NII may be focused almost entirely on wholesale drug distribution.

Madison has lost its mascot

To the editor:

I'm sure a lot of you people know the guinea hen who was the mascot of Madison.

It flew into our town one day and made it and our yard its home. No one knows where it came from.

It mostly stayed in the yard or on top of the roof of the house. But it became bored and soon began to venture out and around the town, visiting its neighbors and checking out the neighborhood.

It never caused any trouble or bothered anyone except for the loud squawk it would let out once in a while. Everyone got used to it and it didn't bother them anymore.

It would go over to the parked cars, especially the ones with shiny bumpers, look at its reflection and peck and carry on as if there was another guinea hen.

Everyone grew to love and care for this bird and that's why whenever it would cross the street to visit its neighbors everyone would stop their cars and let the poor bird across.

Maybe some of you saw the bird on Channel 5's Pertsbort's

People. They couldn't believe that a guinea hen would fly into a town and stay for a year or more, and John was the first one to call it the mascot of Madison.

Everyday when I came home from work it would see me and come running over for me to feed it. I was the only one who could get close enough to it to feed it.

Everyone tried to catch it, even all the cats in town, but it would fly on top of the roof and stay there until it was safe, it was too smart for us all.

It was just beginning to trust me enough to get close enough to catch it, and take it down to a farm where it would be safe and could live in peace. But when I came home from work the other day I was told that someone who may have been a policeman killed my bird and just threw it into his car and took off.

He didn't even have the decency to come and tell me he ran over my bird or even let me bury it. He just ran the poor defenseless bird down, which I am sure could have been avoided.

Don't ignore trash dilemma

The following column is by Professor F. Henry Firsching, School of Sciences, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Most people do not like to discuss trash and garbage. They tend to ignore it. But the dimensions of the trash-garbage problem are so large that it can no longer be ignored.

Trash in this country accumulates at a rate of 160 million tons annually. With a population of about 225 million, on an average basis, each one of us generates about two-thirds of a ton of trash each year.

Some people will complain that such a figure is ridiculous, but stop and think about it. Each one of us fills trash cans and plastic garbage bags each week. There are 52 weeks in a year. Imagine the size of the pile of trash that is generated directly by each household.

And, occasionally you must add a used refrigerator or washing machine to the pile. But that is only direct trash. There is a lot of indirect trash for which we are responsible. Consider a kitchen sink or air conditioner, or any similar item.

A certain amount of trash was generated in manufacturing these items. If we now use these items, we are responsible for the trash generated in manufacturing them.

Generating trash is involved in almost everything we do. Our landfills are running out of space. By the mid 1990s, more than half of our present landfills will be completely filled.

There will be great difficulty in establishing new sites because of the NIMBY (not in my back yard) opposition.

We must control our trash better than we are now. Japan has been actively pursuing this goal for a long time.

Japan has a much smaller land mass than the United States, and a much higher population density. The Japanese recycle about 50 percent of their trash. A solution that the United States should strongly consider.

Source reduction is a major way to lower trash volume. About 18 percent of our total trash is outdoor debris: grass clippings, leaves, bush trimmings, etc.

Instead of these being put in the trash, they should be put in a corner of the yard and made into a compost pile where various micro-organisms and insects will reduce it. During the following spring, residue can be used for fertilizer. That would eliminate one-sixth of our total trash.

Our packaging is too elaborate, too much plastic and cardboard used. Eliminating this waste would also reduce trash.

More recycling is needed. Many communities have recycling programs for glass, newspapers and metals. Many more are needed. Plastics can also be recycled.

A lot of trash can be incinerated, recovering energy that is provided in the burning process.

But each one of us can take steps to reduce trash. Try to limit all items to the maximum. Do not throw away a toothbrush every week or so. Use it for months or even years.

Prolonged use can be made of razor blades, combs, pencils, etc. Use everything to the maximum.

Every little bit of conservation helps. And, if all of us do it, the impact will be significant.

Wheels for Life successful

To the editor:

You were an important part in making the New Salem/St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Wheels for Life bikeathon a success. And though the campaign has ended, our appreciation of your efforts has not gone unnoticed.

We're proud of the 23 riders, the volunteers and the citizens of Venice. Thanks to you and to them, we raised $1,812.

Because of the universal objectives of research and treatment at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, be assured the money will benefit children all over the world.

Knowing that the people in our community are concerned to take quick action for children who need their assistance is heartwarming. You surely must take pride in helping maintain that humanitarian spark.

On behalf of the New Salem Missionary Baptist Church and the children of St. Jude Hospital, thank you.

Limit property tax rise

From state Sen. James "Pete" Phulp, Republican leader, Illinois Senate:

Two proposals are emerging from this spring's tax debate as practical and effective plans to bring state and local spending under control.

The first is the proposed "Tax Accountability Amendment" to the Illinois Constitution. The second is a plan to cap local property tax levies at the inflation rate.

Under the "Tax Accountability Amendment," a three-fifths majority vote would be required in the General Assembly for approval of any tax increase. The three-fifths requirement would make passage of tax increases more difficult, but not impossible.

It would change the dynamics of tax policy in Illinois by assuring that no tax increase wins legislative approval without bipartisan support. Tax increases would have to be a consensus decision reached by both parties and the governor of the state.

Last year we had a partisan tax increase rammed through the Legislature by the speaker of the House. It failed to provide meaningful property tax relief and, now, lawmakers are back in Springfield a year later with the same issues hanging over our heads. Democrats who successfully fought off Republican amendments to incorporate property tax relief in the tax package, are, in hindsight, agreeing with the Republican foresight.

The "Tax Accountability Amendment" would prevent a repeat of last year's income tax fiasco by assuring that serious negotiations take place before any future tax increase is passed. Last year's flawed, patchwork, temporary tax plan is the strongest argument around for passage of an accountability amendment.

While the proposed amendment is aimed at state tax increases, the cap on property taxes would attack Illinois' serious problem with local taxes. The voters. It's a straightforward approach that simply empowers voters. If the increase is truly needed, then local officials should be able to sell that increase to the public.

Government should not be a growth industry. Both of these measures have enough flexibility so that necessary government services would not be impaired. Yet, they would force state and local government to be more accountable and responsive to the concerns of taxpayers.

Any unit of government wanting to raise property taxes above the inflation rate would have to submit that request to the voters. It's a straightforward approach that simply empowers voters. If the increase is truly needed, then local officials should be able to sell that increase to the public.

Government should not be a growth industry. Both of these measures have enough flexibility so that necessary government services would not be impaired. Yet, they would force state and local government to be more accountable and responsive to the concerns of taxpayers.

Supporters back Cooper

To the editor:

My attention was drawn to Dennis Grubaugh's column printed in reference to Tamara Cooper, who went to jail to keep her father away from her son. Mrs. Cooper states that her father abused her son sexually.

You said Cooper brought the child's name to the limelight when she began calling every newspaper and TV station in town from the Madison County Jail. This is an error.

Tamara was returning a call from your paper in a request for information. I am involved in Mrs. Cooper's support group and most of the calls.

We felt Tamara needed some help, and going very public with this was the avenue we chose to help. Any opinion in disagreement can be directed to us, the support group.

The mother revealing the child's name, in your opinion, was needed. I will say simply that it is my opinion and the opinions of other media that it was crucial to the story.

Your intention to protect the child in your paper is admirable, to say the least. The intention of the other media is also admirable.

Tamara, you are a pioneer in parents' rights to protect children from sexual abuse. You give parents courage; they know you have paved the way, even though the courts are not exactly supportive. They know they can make a difference.

Readers, please show your support by a yellow ribbon. One person in support makes a difference. A large group makes a larger difference.

Read my lips: You can control most of your real estate tax bill

"Read my lips: No new taxes."

It got everyone's attention and helped George Bush get elected to the highest office in the United States.

Even those who didn't believe his comment (as he accepted the Republican nomination in 1988) may have figured taxes wouldn't rise as fast under Bush as under a candidate who didn't promise to hold the line on taxation.

When Walter Mondale ran for president as the Democratic nominee in 1984, he made a bold pledge, saying he fully intended to raise taxes. wonder what ever happened to him?

TAXES WERE TOPIC "A" last week as local real estate tax bills arrived in the mail.

The two installments (on 1989 taxes payable in 1990) are due July 8 and Sept. 10 (at least in my neighborhood).

My telephone rang immediately after the mailing. The caller was a Granite City resident who noted that Metro East Sanitary District taxpayers last year approved a five-year 47.8-cent tax rate limit per $100 assessed valuation.

He wanted to know why the new MESD rate is 73.77 cents.

MADISON COUNTY CLERK Evelyn Bowles' staff says both amounts are correct.

The 73.77-cent figure includes a 47.8-cent general fund tax rate, as set by voters, and a half-cent rate for auditing. Both of these are precise ceilings that can't be exceeded when the county's clerical staff computes property tax bills.

The 73.77-cent total also consists of 18.22 cents for liability insurance and tort liability judgments, 3.93 cents for Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund pension costs and 3.32 cents for Social Security costs.

Those three rates, sanctioned by Illinois statutes, tend to vary slightly from year to year, a clerical assistant said.

PURE ARITHMETIC (within the framework established by laws and elections) governs the tax process, Miss Bowles would be the first to point out. She doesn't set tax philosophy or policy.

She administers and implements (along with some of the other county offices) specific tasks assigned to her office.

In the case of the sanitary district, levies set by the five-member board are applied to the $458,035,550 assessment base ($296,137,294 in Madison County and $161,898,256 in St. Clair).

This determines the rates that are needed, and these rates then are multiplied against one's individual valuation to decide the amount of your bill.

ASSESSMENTS ARE SET by township assessors, subject to modification by the Madison County Board of Review. To make sure that values are similar to the amounts of actual property sales, the state can apply a multiplier to each county's valuation total.

Our county always makes sure it avoids a multiplier, by achieving a 1.0 factor. To accomplish this, it orders positive, negative or 1.0 multipliers for each of the 24 townships.

With the state law mandating that assessments be one-third of actual "full fair cash value," a $30,000 home is assessed at $10,000, a $60,000 home at $20,000, a $90,000 home at $30,000, etc.

The easiest way to compare rates and tax bills is to use as your example a $30,000 parcel of property, assessed at $10,000.

YOUR TOTAL TAX on such a home in most areas of Granite City this summer would be slightly less than $800 — $786.56, to be exact. Making up this total are the taxes of each of the districts within which you reside.

With a $10,000 assessment (100 times $100), the bill is 100 times the rate. The 73.77-cent Metro East Sanitary rate results in a $7,377 tax for the year.

Other portions of such a $796.56 bill are $402.52 for the Granite City schools, $123.43 for the city government, $85.62 for the county government, $33.06 for Granite City parks, $30.24 for Granite City township, $28.55 for the newly-created Granite City public library district and $19.37 for Belleville Area College.

A $973.09 bill on a ($30,000) $10,000-assessed home in South Venice would consist of $374.73 to help operate the Venice public schools, $298.34 for the city of Venice, $55.62 for Madison County, $73.77 for MESD, $52.43 for Venice township (Madison-Venice area), $50.29 for the Venice park district, $19.37 for BAC, $15 even for the Venice public library and $13.54 for Venice township's road program.

NAMEOKI TOWNSHIP unincorporated area homes probably would pay the Granite City school, county, MESD and BAC taxes plus $82.43 for Special Services and $84.84 for Nameoki town roads, $34.84 for Nameoki township and $29.36 for the Long Lake fire district.

Other taxes to be paid in the Quad City area this summer include (on $10,000):

$481.28 for Madison schools, $254.25 for the city of Madison, $43.30 for the village of Ponton Beach, $39.25 for Chouteau town roads, $16.56 for Chouteau township, $16.56 for the Mitchell fire district and $27.12 for the Cloverleaf/East Madison fire district.

ALL OF THESE TAXES are controlled by citizens at least indirectly, by choosing legislators, judges, board members, aldermen and commissioners.

And most of the rates are set directly by the public, such as the limits established recently at the Granite City regional library and MESD elections.

Correction on wedding date

The date on the wedding of Julia Kay Sparks and Gary Lee Ingham Jr. was incorrectly given in last week's paper. They were married April 21, 1990, at Second Baptist Church by the Rev. Mark Haumschilt.

The bride is the daughter of James and Carolyn Sparks of Granite City and the groom is the son of Gary Lee Ingham Sr. and Sandra Bertrand of Granite City.

We regret the error.

The United Woman of the Foursquare Church held a bazaar and craft show on Saturday in the church basement.

Birthdays and anniversaries for the month of May were celebrated Sunday evening at the church, following services.

The deadline for reservations and payment is Friday, June 8, for members of the Magna Security Club who are planning to attend "Passport to Fun," at Six Flags Over Mid-America on Thursday, June 21.

The bus will leave the Nestle parking lot at 9 a.m. and return at 3:30 p.m. For more information, call Mattie Pope at 451-5500.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene (Doris) Ross spent Sunday and Monday in Alton, Mo., where they attended the funeral of his aunt, Thela Ross.

Holy Family Men's Club has made a generous donation to Holy Family Parish to help defray the cost of a bus which transports elderly residents to Mass on Sunday mornings.

The men's group also elected new officers for the coming year. The officer corps includes: Jeff Jansen, president; Pete Mushill, vice president; Steve Konuch, secretary; and Mike Hayes, treasurer.

The Young at Heart Senior Club also installed new officers recently. They are: Irma Manning, president; Ruth Novacich, vice president; Marge King, treasurer; Billie Schuler, recording secretary; and Cleola Siebert, corresponding secretary.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When two people sign a contract, many times one of the parties will not perform according to the terms of the contract. This is known as a breach of contract. The question arises in these cases regarding what remedies are available to the innocent party where there is a breach of contract.

In many cases, a court will award money damages to the innocent party. In some matters involving breach of contract, however, the awarding of damages is an inadequate remedy. In these cases, the plaintiff may file suit for specific performance to force the defendant to comply with the terms of the original contract.

In one recent case, a 60-year-old widow entered into a contract with a young couple to sell her home. Shortly before the closing of the real estate transaction, the young couple decided that they could not afford the home even though the bank had approved financing for them. The couple notified the widow that they did not intend to proceed with the sale.

The widow in this case had a choice. She could have once again attempted to find a buyer and then sue the couple for any money damages she sustained as a result of the delay. She could also attempt to sell the house and at the same time file suit for specific performance in an effort to force the couple to proceed with the sale of the property in the event she could not find another buyer.

In this situation, the seller decided to seek specific performance of the contract. She felt that she was in a very bad real estate market, and she believed it would be difficult to find another buyer for the property. In this case, the court granted specific performance of the contract, and the buyers were forced to proceed with the real estate sale. The court allowed specific performance because money damages were inadequate in this case to compensate the widow for the loss she sustained.

Students enjoy foreign travels

Easter vacation was especially educational this year for nine Granite City High School students who, with their teacher, Gene Smallman, visited Moscow, Paris and London.

The students were Ann Marie Mitchell, Mary Kay Mitchell, Amy Wigger, Heather Gregory, Judy Bergbrader, Cathy Martin, Carrie Polovchic, Theresa Price and Dennis Jolly.

Moscow left the greatest impression on the students because conditions in the Soviet Union are so different from life in the United States. "We saw for ourselves the worsening condition of the Soviet economy. There seemed to be shortages of every basic item from soap to bread," said Smallman, a world history teacher. And, because of the shortages the group was almost constantly approached by Russians who wanted to buy or barter for American goods such as gum, ballpoint pens, cassettes and even clothes. This despite the fact that such transactions are illegal in Russia and can result in severe penalties for Soviet citizens. The group observed young Russian men making such deals right outside the Kremlin.

Another part of the Moscow tour that impressed the students from Granite City was the ability of so many Russians to speak good English.

Some of the sites that the students visited in Moscow included Red Square, the Tomb of Lenin, and the Moscow Circus, and of course the new McDonalds restaurant which had a two hour wait to even enter the building.

After Russia the group flew to Paris, "Paris is so beautiful," was a remark frequently heard from members of the tour. In Paris they visited the Louvre Museum, and the Cathedral of Notre Dame.

They also enjoyed a cruise on the Seine River viewed the Eiffel tower and Arc de Triomphe.

The last stop on the itinerary was London, which the group reached by coach after first crossing the English Channel by ferry. London was as beautiful as Paris, but the British people were extra friendly, the group said.

One of the most enjoyable parts of the tour was spent at Covent Gardens Theatre where the group saw the hit play, Miss Saigon.

Smallman said he may organize a tour to Australia and New Zealand for 1991.

GC teacher named as regional judge

The National Council of Teachers of English has announced the appointment of Cynthia Hornum as a regional judge for the 1990 NCTE Achievement Awards in writing.

Through the nationally recognized competition, now in its 33rd year, about 800 high school seniors are cited for excellence in writing and are recommended to colleges and universities for admission and for financial aid, if needed. Results of the contest are to be announced in October.

The NCTE is made up of more than 90,000 individual teachers and institutional members at all levels of instruction, from elementary school through graduate college.

Matthew 9:13 "... speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed."

In the city of Capernaum, a centurion came to ask Christ to heal his servant. Jesus replied, "I will come." The centurion told Jesus that he didn't have to come to his home, just speak the word of healing. Jesus declared that he had never seen such faith and said, "Go thy way. As thou hast believed, so be it unto you."

The same principles that worked for the centurion will work for you. God's Word has authority over sickness and disease, when it is believed. We cannot expect the Word to work if we only speak it. Our faith gives God's Word its power. Remember, the centurion came to Jesus, beseeching him, and he believed in the authority of his Word.

The Scriptures teach us that "he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."

Start to increase your faith by getting into the Word of God and claiming His promises for your needs.

Mel, Goldie work well together

By Harry Hamm
Staff writer

"Bird on a Wire" (1/2) is a film so eager to please that it squeezes enough action, thrills, explosions, crashes, stunts and romance into the first 30 minutes to last the entire film.

This makes the middle of the movie drag aimlessly until a fairly exciting and unusual climax in a zoo.

Mel Gibson stars as a real Mr. "Ex." He is Goldie Hawn's ex-lover, an ex-drug smuggler, an ex-hippie, an ex-government informant and finally, a permanent resident of Uncle Sam's Witness Relocation Program. Gibson squealed on a gang of drug kingpins who were convicted on the basis of Gibson's testimony. They went to jail. Gibson went into hiding, with a new name and life.

One rainy evening in Detroit, where Gibson (under an assumed name) is employed as a mechanic at a gas station, Hawn drives in for a fill-up in a rented BMW. She is a successful corporate attorney who believes Gibson is dead since the government manufactured a story about him being killed in a plane crash.

When Hawn sees Gibson, she recognizes him right away. At the same time two thugs show up at the station to kill Gibson. It seems one of the Feds who is supposed to be protecting Gibson actually is trying to get him eliminated.

Hawn helps Gibson escape the assassination attempt. The two then go on the road to find safe harbor, straighten out Gibson's problems and, perhaps, rekindle their former relationship.

Ticket sale at county office is criticized

By John D. Milazzo
Staff writer

A Republican candidate for Madison County treasurer has fired a salvo at county Democratic officeholders over the practice by some of selling tickets out of their offices for a party fund raiser.

John Shimkus, a government and history teacher at Metro East Lutheran High School in Edwardsville and the GOP candidate opposing the incumbent Democrat, Treasurer Mick Henkhaus, in the fall, called the practice illegal.

Shimkus said he bought a $10 ticket to the June 10 Demco (Democratic Elected Madison County Officials) barbecue from an employee in the office of Circuit Clerk Willard "Butch" Portell in early April.

Portell, like all other county-wide officeholders, is a Democrat.

Portell responded by calling the issue "stupid" and accusing Shimkus of grasping for publicity in the face of a lack of substantive issues.

The event on Sunday will be the ninth annual gathering for the party at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Illinois 159 in Maryville.

Shimkus, of Collinsville, said he was directed to an employee in Portell's inner office, wrote out a check and was given a ticket.

He said he subsequently contacted a representative of the State Board of Elections about the incident and was told that such a practice is illegal.

The ticket purchase is a clear demonstration of Democratic control of the County Courthouse has created an atmosphere where political abuse is free to flourish, Shimkus said.

Dan White, chief of investigations for the state elections board in Chicago, said there is a provision in the Illinois election code prohibiting the use of public funds and other resources for promoting political parties or campaigns.

"It looks like what he (Shimkus) did was run his own little 'sting' operation," White said, adding that his office will investigate such allegations.

"We usually request that we get this (kind of allegation) in writing," he said, noting that he was not aware the office had received such a complaint.

He said that proving any wrongdoing under the circumstances as set out by Shimkus "would be very difficult."

Shimkus said he did not recall the name of the elections official he spoke with in Springfield. But he said it was the same person he spoke to in November 1989 when he alleged that Portell improperly allowed his office telephone number to be used in campaign literature for Associate Judge Dan Stack, who ran unsuccessfully for a circuit judge nomination.

Portell, of Collinsville, supported Stack in Stack's failed primary race.

"Why doesn't he go up to Edgar's office and ask his secretary for a $1,000 ticket to one of Edgar's fund raisers? I'll bet he'd get one," Portell said. Secretary of State Jim Edgar is the Republican candidate for governor.

"And, another thing," Portell said, "Demco is not pure politics by a long shot. The money that's raised goes to a lot of charitable causes, including a children's Christmas fund."

Some of the proceeds are also used as advertising support for church and other religious bulletins and publications, Portell said.

Henkhaus said, "I have no idea if selling the tickets (in county offices) is illegal. I don't do it in this office."

"But I wonder if Mr. Shimkus has sold any of his own fund-raising tickets to the people at the school where he teaches," Henkhaus said.

Shimkus called Henkhaus' question "kind of silly."

"The point is, the people who work here are not elected public officials. To the contrary, there are no tax dollars involved here at all. This is a private school."

Rabies clinics here Saturday

Dr. Timothy L. Watt and Bellemore Animal Hospital have reset two rabies clinics due to rain.

The price for dogs is: rabies $9, distemper $9 and parvovirus $8, a total of $25.

Cats: rabies shots $9, distemper $9, upper respiratory $8 and leukemia $10, a total of $35.

Brewers deny targeting teens

By Vivienne Levy
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — The beer industry has lashed out at accusations that brewers are targeting teen-age drinkers with tens of millions of dollars spent annually sponsoring motor sports.

Branding a recent report by the American Automobile Association (AAA) Foundation for Traffic Safety as "prejudice and opinion masquerading as science," representatives of the nation's leading brewers held a press conference to justify their championing of fast cars.

"The (critics') ultimate goal is to reduce, restrict or even eliminate the right of adult Americans to enjoy a glass of beer," said James Sanders, president of the Washington-based Beer Institute, which represents 40 major brewers, including Anheuser-Busch.

The AAA booklet, entitled "Beer and Fast Cars," maintains that by spending up to $50 million a year, brewers promote drunk driving by targeting a susceptible audience of largely unemployed youngsters.

"Faced with decreasing consumption of alcohol by health-conscious, white-collar Americans, the beer industry has turned its attention to blue-collar youths," the report says. It further depicts motor sports fans as uneducated working-class kids who "resent government, educators' and bureaucrats' pronouncements on what is good for their health."

With a lineup of spokesmen from Championship Auto Racing Teams (CART) and the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR), who criticized the report for its "condescending attitude to auto racing fans, Sanders presented the Beer Institute's point-by-point rebuttal of the accusations.

He maintained that over 70 percent of all beer drinkers are 30 years old or more and 80 percent have received a high school education.

Quoting data from the United States Auto Club, the sanctioning organization for the late-May Indianapolis 500, he said 73 percent of racing fans are 30 or over; 88 percent are married; 80 percent earn more than $20,000 a year; and more than half are management, administrative, clerical or retired workers.

"The assumption that American consumers (of beer) are too dumb to make their own decisions and to take care of themselves ... is absurd and insulting," said Sanders.

Kevin O'Brien of CART told assembled television and newspaper reporters that auto sports sponsorship is good business.

"Racing fans are overwhelmingly adult, gainfully employed and educated," he said. "This is not an attack on drunk driving; it's an attack on ... individual rights and common sense."

Les Richter, vice president of NASCAR, gave the same profile to auto sports fans. "Our races attract high-quality fans; that's why so many prominent American companies are active in motor sports sponsorship," he said.

The press conference was the Beer Institute's first attempt to tackle criticism of the industry's advertising and sponsorship policies.

"We've built up a tide of outrage over the constant release of pseudoscientific findings," said Sanders. "We're not going to take it anymore."

At local grade schools, it's 'Apples for the students'

By Sam Hananel
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The Schnuck's supermarket chain has given Granite City schools more than 15 Apple computers so far in its "Apples for Kids" program.

"It's Schnuck's 50th anniversary gift back to the community," said Schnuck's Mary Beth Rummel, coordinator of the Apples For Students program.

So far, the company has awarded more than $2 million in computer equipment to schools in the bi-state metropolitan area.

Even more will be given out once all of the submitted cash register receipts are processed and verified. Schools were given a June 4 deadline to turn in food purchase receipts.

Schnuck's offered a full line of products, including Apple IIe monochrome and color systems, Apple IIe, IIgs and Macintosh systems, disk drives, printers and a variety of software.

"We just want to thank all the Granite City parents, teachers and students for their part in the program," Rummel said.

After all its receipts are turned in, St. Elizabeth's School in Granite City will receive four computers, four disk drives, one printer and about $68,000 in software.

Principal Beverly Foote was full of praise for Schnuck's. "It was a well run, well set up program, just outstandingly done," Foote said. She added that the program was not too complicated for the schools to follow.

She complimented students for their efforts in collecting the register receipts. "They cooperated well in that they brought in receipts religiously," she said.

"The response was wonderful," said Kathy McBride, principal of Wilson School. "We had several incentive programs to encourage students to collect receipts."

McBride said the school showed special movies and required Schnuck's receipts as tickets for admission. Approximately $639,000 in receipts was collected to qualify for two full computers, plus additional software.

But teachers and students weren't the only ones who helped out. "We had elderly neighbors whose kids have been out of school for years give us tons of tapes," McBride said.

Niedringhaus School made use of the program by expanding its existing computers. After collecting about $25,000 in receipts, Principal Ellen Voyles said, the school received 11 disk drives, two Imagewriter printers and one computer.

"We decided to bring the equipment that we already had up to top standards," Voyles said.

Rummel said another benefit of the "Apples for Kids" program was that schools were setting up partnerships with other schools. Niedringhaus School, for example, donated several thousand dollars worth of receipts to other schools to help them qualify for computer equipment.

Although Schnuck's has not yet determined all the computers qualifying for equipment through purchases during the promotion period of several months, the following have so far received computer equipment: Frohardt, Marshall, Maryville, Wilson, Lake Mitchell, St. Elizabeth's and Niedringhaus.

European folklore festival at mall this week

St. Clair Square is hosting the only indoor United States appearance of the European Folklore Festival through Sunday, June 10.

Elizabeth Schooley, mall marketing director, said it features 25 artisans from Holland, West Germany and Czechoslovakia. The authentically-attired artisans will create Old World arts and crafts using tools and techniques passed down from their ancestors. Many of the artisans are fifth- or sixth-generation masters of their art.

Among the crafts people are: a wooden-instrument maker, linen maker, wooden shoe maker, doll maker, roof thatcher, glass, etcher, copper engraver, toy maker, tile painter, jewelry maker and lace maker.

"This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see how the Europeans of yesteryear lived and worked," Schooley said.

"We also have scheduled seven local musical groups to perform throughout the week."

St. Clair Square is proud to host the only indoor United States appearance of the European Folklore Foundation, June 5-10. Over 25 authentically attired artisans from Holland, West Germany and Czechoslovakia will be creating arts and crafts using the tools and techniques of early Europeans right before your eyes. Plus we'll have continuous entertainment throughout the mall.

Among these craftspeople are a wooden instrument maker, a linen maker, a wooden shoe maker, a lace maker, a dollmaker, a roof thatcher, a glass etcher, a copper engraver, a toy maker, a tile painter, a jewelry maker and many more. Reds take Wallace in 23rd round

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

The phone call didn't come as soon as Joe Wallace would have liked, but at least it came. Around 5 p.m. Tuesday, the Granite City High School catcher was informed he was drafted in the 23rd round of the major league baseball amateur draft by the Cincinnati Reds. He was a much lower pick than he had anticipated, and Wallace made it sound very unlikely that he would sign with the Reds, opting instead to fulfill his commitment to Oklahoma State.

"I was shocked I went so low," said Wallace. "I guess the big thing was that I had already committed to Oklahoma State. If I had to say right now, I would guess I'll probably be going to college."

That would mean Wallace would remain here this summer to play American Legion as well as Mon-Clair League ball. The Reds retain their rights to Wallace until he is officially enrolled at OSU.

"They're coming by (Thursday morning) at about 9:00," said Wallace's stepfather, Nathan Bailey. "We'll listen to what they have to say, but I don't know if we'll be able to reach an agreement."

The Reds scout who informed Wallace of the draft was Tom McDevitt, the former head coach at Eastern Illinois University. McDevitt coached at EIU when Darin Hendrickson and Tim Hogan — two of Wallace's high school teammates — played there briefly.

Wallace has said he was seeking a total package of $80,000 to sign with the pros, but there's virtually no chance of a 23rd round pick getting that kind of money.

Brian Daubach of Belleville West, a tremendous hitter but nowhere near Wallace's class defensively as a catcher, was drafted in the 17th round by the New York Mets. Daubach has committed to St. Louis University. Brent Brede, a lefthanded pitcher at Trenton Westlin, was drafted in the fifth round by the Minnesota Twins. Brede has committed to the University of Arkansas.

"I don't know what to think anymore," said Bob Stegemeier, Wallace's high school coach. "Every time I open my mouth on this subject, they do the exact opposite. You can't believe anything you're told before the draft. But if all else fails through, Joe still has Oklahoma State to fall back on, and that's not too bad."

Not bad at all. The Cowboys (55-16) are two games away from winning the College World Series again. They play LSU today in Omaha, Neb. A win will put them in the championship game on Saturday against Stanford or Georgia.

"Committing to Oklahoma State didn't help," said Bailey. "They really thought Joe would go by about the seventh round. (OSU head coach) Gary Ward called here a couple times the last few days. They couldn't believe he went so low."

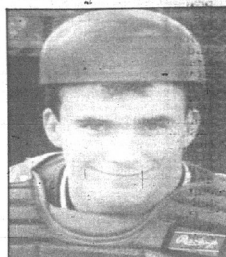

"We were surprised, too. Joe got all the recognition and we were sure he was going to go higher. But you never know what will happen."

If Wallace enrolls at Oklahoma State, the major leagues won't draft him until he's completed three years. But he should take heart in knowing that lower draft picks have done it right (the Cardinals waited until the 42nd round of the 1971 draft before they picked Keith Hernandez).

And Wallace can also take some pride in the fact he has been chosen by a college team on the verge of winning the national championship and also by the team which currently holds the best record in baseball (.33-14).

"If Joe is here this summer, it would be best for him to play in the Mon-Clair League as much as possible," said Stegemeier. "He would see some good pitching and it would be a better challenge."

Enthusiased Tigers look hard to beat

How would you like to go to war with a group of guys known as Moto, Psycho, Funky, Snake, J.J., Weed and Slob?

You would, particularly if you knew those are pseudonyms for the key members of the Edwardsville High School baseball team. The Tigers rolled through Granite City last weekend and didn't stop until they had clinched their fourth trip to the state tournament in the last 11 years.

On three previous trips, the Tigers have lost in the semifinals each time. But who can beat them this time? Certainly no one in this area was close this year. Edwardsville goes into today's 4 p.m. quarterfinal game in Springfield against Cham- pais with a 22-game winning streak and a 29-3 record.

The Tigers have scored 295 runs (9.2 per game) and allowed only 99 (2.90 team ERA) in 1990, including 28-1 in the post-season. They have a .375 team batting average and have won 12 games this year by the 10-run rule. Of the nine regulars, third baseman Dave Slemmer has the lowest average at .321.

Tom Price, John Droste and Steve "Weed" Flowers are all over .400 and the Tigers have five regulars — Mark "Psycho" Little, Greg "Snake" Morrison, Price, J.J. Scerba and Flowers — with at least 30 RBIs. Price is now 120 this year, 21.0 over the last two seasons and 31-1 for his career. Joe Blasingim is 7-0.

Most baseball fans in Granite City like the Tigers, led by flamboyant coach Tom "Moto" Pile. For that matter, most fans in most surrounding cities outside of Edwardsville don't like the Tigers. And it's been harder to take this year as Edwardsville has blown out so many of its opponents, including an 11-1 win over Belleville West in Monday's title game at Varsity Field.

You hear it all. The conference teams they face don't start their best pitchers against them. They leave their regulars in even after the game is won. Maybe a lot of that is true, but does anyone really believe Edwardsville isn't good enough to win at state?

Like the Tigers, I enjoy watching them play. They have style and flair, and most of all they have an enthusiasm which is sorely missing in many teams around here. I know, it's easy to be enthusiastic when you're beating the dickens out of your opponent, but winning is much a product of enthusiasm as vice versa.

The Tigers are better than ever. Their most significant loss from last year's team was pitcher/shortstop Adam Lynn. But Blasingim, a transfer from Alton Marquette, has better numbers on the mound than Lynn did, while Tim "Funky" Funkhouser has moved from second base to shortstop while Flowers has blossomed at second.

And the colorful Pile pointed out that luck could be with the Tigers in Springfield, home of Abe Lincoln, one of Pile's favorite historical figures. (Pile teaches history at EHS).

There could be somebody at state ready to handle the Tigers, but don't be surprised if the big trophy comes back to the Madison County Sentinel.

Weckman to play tennis at SIUE

By Dave Whaley

GRANITE CITY — After years of national dominance, the SIUE tennis program is in a state of transition. Keri Weckman could be one to lead the revival.

Weckman, who graduated from Granite City High School last week, signed a letter of intent this week to play college tennis for the Cougars. Weckman qualified for the Illinois state tennis tournament each of her four years in high school.

She was 6-19 in dual meets and was the No. 1 singles player for the Warriors all four seasons. Seven of her 19 losses came at state competition. She was the sectional champion her sophomore year and won the Southwestern Conference tournament last season. Weckman was never lower than third in sectional competition and was an all-conference selection all four years, first-team all-area the last three years.

Weckman has been ranked in the top 10 for the St. Louis area since the age of 12. She has also been ranked in the Missouri Valley section of the United States Tennis Association for the past five years.

She plans to major in physical education at SIUE. Weckman was also contacted by Arkansas State, Wichita State, Drake, Evansville, SIU-Carbondale and Butler, as well as several NCAA Division III schools, although her father, Ron, said Butler was the only Division I school which was prepared to make her a serious offer.

Holden had been an assistant at Clemson University and will begin his duties at SIUE on July 1.

"It's an all-year program," Ron Weckman said. "They'll get going two weeks before school starts in August and work right through May."

Legion season opens

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Things will be a little different, but pretty much the same as the summer baseball season kicks off this week.

The Tri-City Post 113 Triplets open up District 22 play with a 7:30 p.m. game at Varsity Field on Friday against Collinsville Post 365. The Triplets will look much the same as the Granite City High School team did this spring, with a few additions.

Three 1989 GCHS graduates are still eligible to play Legion ball, and righthander Jamie Needham is expected to start on the mound for Post 113 Friday. Needham just completed his freshman year at the University of Missouri-Rolla.

"Jamie should be a pretty good pitcher in the league this year," said Ralph Burnett, starting his third full season as the Post 113 manager. "I don't know if he can be as dominant as Darin Hendrickson was (District 22 MVP in 1989), but Jamie is a lot bigger and stronger this year, and he pitched pretty well for us last summer."

Burnett will be assisted by Tom Hennrich and Tim Hogan. The Triplets are in the North Division of District 22, down from seven teams to six this year. Bethalto and Troy have dropped out from last year and Wood River has been added.

Granite City will host part of a big 20-team tournament over the Fourth of July weekend. Teams from throughout Illinois, Missouri and Indiana will compete here as well as Saugeit, Highland and Trenton in pool competition. The finals will be July 3 in Granite City.

The North Division playoffs will be held in Granite City on July 28-29. The Granite City Optimists are no longer part of the District 22 Junior Legion league. Granite City manager Paul Kacera is president of the new 14-team Southwest Baseball Association. The Optimists are in Division II with Lebanon, Troy, O'Fallon and Fairview Heights. Division I is Brighton, Greenville, Stanton and Vandalia. Division III is Waterloo, Okawville, Freeburg, New Baden and Columbia.

The Optimists, consisting mainly of freshmen and sophomores at GCHS, open the season with a 6 p.m. game in Stanton tonight. They have non-league home games with Glasgow Village (Mo.) and St. Charles (Mo.) this weekend.

Dave Boley will probably open the mound for us in Stanton, said Kacera, assisted by Carl Benson, Marty LeVaut and Darin Hendrickson. "We'll let him grow about 75 pitches. He needs to get his arm back in shape."

The league finals will be in Granite City at the end of July.

Host Italy goes for 4th Cup

Facts and figures about the World Cup, the 1990 version of which will be played in Italy, featuring Steve Tritschuh and the U.S. National Team.

—This is the fourth time the United States has qualified for the big show, but the first time since 1950. The Americans went to Uruguay for the first World Cup in 1930, beat Belgium 3-0 and Paraguay 3-0, but lost to Argentina 6-1. In 1934 in Italy, they lost 7-1 to Italy in their only game. In 1950 in Brazil, they lost 3-1 to Spain before the landmark 1-0 upset of England. The U.S. bowed out three days later with a 5-2 loss to Chile.

—Italy and Brazil have both won the Cup three times. The Italians won in 1934 (in Italy), 1938 (France) and 1982 (Spain), and are considered a favorite to win their fourth on the home turf. Brazil won in 1958 (Sweden), 1962 (Chile) and 1970 (Mexico). Five times the host country has won the Cup (Uruguay 1930, Italy 1934, England 1966, West Germany 1974 and Argentina 1978).

Other World Cup champions have been Uruguay in 1950 (in Brazil), West Germany in 1954 (in Switzerland) and Argentina in 1958 (Mexico). Argentina will try to equal Brazil's record of winning back-to-back Cups (Italy in 1934-36 and Brazil in 1958-62).

The average attendance in 1950 (Brazil) was a record 60,772. There was a record total of 2,285,498 fans for 52 matches in Mexico four years ago.

—The World Cup was held in 1930, but not again until 1950 due to World War II.

—Until this year, Mexico (1970 and 1986) was the only two-time host of the Cup. Italy previously hosted in 1934, but 10 other countries have hosted it once each. The United States will serve as host for the first time in 1994.

—Against the teams the United States is grouped with in Group A (Czechoslovakia, Italy and Austria), the Americans have faced only Italy and are the only team to have lost, 7-1, in 1934 in the World Cup in Rome. In 1934, Italy won 5-0 on April 4, 1935 in Rome, and got a scoreless tie on May 30, 1934 in East Rutherford, N.J.

—Of the players on the roster, only Mike Windischmann and Bruce Murray have more international experience. Of the National Team than Tritschuh. Those three trail only Rick Davis on the all-time list of international games played.

—TNT (Channel 6 on Qcable Cable in Granite City) will be carrying several World Cup games live, right through to the championship game from Rome on July 8. All three U.S. games in pool play will be carried live, beginning at 9:55 a.m. Sunday. The first game will be against Czechoslovakia from Florence. Next Thursday's game against Italy in Rome will start at 1:55 p.m. The game against Austria from Florence on June 19 begins at 1:55 p.m. All starting times are Central Daylight Time.

Briefly

Promotion at Granite Inc.

Bill Bronnbauer has been promoted to general manager of Granite Inc. according to an announcement made by Don Adams, the firm's president.

Granite Inc. is the home improvement division of Granite Fence and Granite Glass, specializing in replacement windows and doors, residential fencing, patio covers, awnings, screen rooms and storm windows and doors.

Bronnbauer joined Granite Fence in March 1983. Previously he had been an energy-use advisor for Illinois Power Company.

He and his wife, the former Laura Edwards, are lifelong residents of this area. Bronnbauer attended Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and Illinois State University.

"I enjoy working for a company that has been in this business for 35 years and offers good-quality products and competitive pricing and then stands behind them," said Bronnbauer.

Granite Inc. is a Dempsey and Adams company. The parent firm also includes Regency Leasing and Dempsey-Adams Auto Body.

Lentz appointed manager

Glik Stores has announced the appointment of Michelle Lentz to manager of the $10 & Less Store in Crossroads Plaza, Granite City.

Lentz, a Hamel native, is a recent graduate of the Hickey School for Retail Management.

Glik Stores, a family-owned business, operates 29 apparel locations in Missouri and Illinois. This is the company's second $10 & Less store.

The other $10 & Less store is located in Northtown Shopping Center in Highland.

Grote joins Prudential

Edward D. Grote has been named an agent in The Prudential's Alton office, at 235 East Center Drive.

He now serves Alton as well as the surrounding areas.

Before joining The Prudential, Grote, a native of Granite City, was a service advisor in Wood River. Grote and his wife Sheryl live in Granite City.

Winter mild, IP has first-quarter loss

DECATUR — Illinois Power reported a loss of 30 cents per common share for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

This compares to a loss of $4.83 per common share of stock in the first quarter of 1989.

For the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, Illinois Power had earnings of 13 cents per common share, compared to a loss of $3.59 per common share for the same period in 1988-89.

Earnings remained depressed during the first 1990 quarter due to "inadequate rate relief and moderate weather during the latter part of the heating season," a spokesman said.

Mild weather during January and February resulted in a decrease in gas and electric sales.

Gas sales during the quarter were down 11 percent from the same period in 1989. Residential gas sales were off 21.2 percent from the first quarter of 1989 and commercial sales were down 19.7 percent.

Gas sales and transportation to industrial customers, which are not weather-sensitive, increased 12.1 percent.

Electric sales dipped 4.7 percent during the first quarter of this year, compared to the same period in 1989. The largest decrease was among residential customers, whose usage was down 7.8 percent.

The losses in 1989 reflect an after-tax write-off of $346 million, or $4.87 per share for the first quarter. For the 12 months ended March 31, 1989, the loss was $4.80 per share.

The write-off was taken in response to disallowances relating to the construction of the Clinton Power Station contained in the Illinois Commerce Commission's 1989 rate order.

Illinois Power's board of directors suspended payment of common stock dividends effective in the third quarter of 1989, citing uncertainty surrounding the issue of placing the remaining costs of the Clinton Power Station into rates.

Illinois Bell ringing up phone sales to business customers

For the first time since the 1984 divestiture of AT&T and the Bell companies, Illinois Bell has begun selling telephones directly to business customers.

"This is an important strategic development for the company because once again Illinois Bell is offering customers one-stop shopping," said Tim Stanton, product manager of marketing.

The telephones were designed specifically to work with the Ameritech Custom Business Service, a flexible phone system designed for businesses that have two to six lines.

Illinois Bell service representatives will offer three styles of Northern Telecom Unity sets to purchasers of the system.

"Small-business owners want a single company to fill their communications needs," Stanton said. "Offering the service and pre-programmed telephones that complement our service enables us to be their total communications provider."

The sets are pre-programmed to work with the Ameritech Custom Business Service. Callers need only push clearly labeled buttons to use features such as call hold, call pickup, intercom and call transfer. The company is allowed to sell the phones as a result of a 1987 ruling by the Federal Communications Commission.
